

Randolph PD Issues Scam Alert* On Friday April 24, a neighboring municipality received a report of a very serious incident involving a bail bond scam. The victim was contacted over the phone and told that her son was arrested for aggravated assault after he rear-ended an undercover police officer with his vehicle. The victim was further advised that the undercover police officer's wife then contacted an attorney as a result of the accident. The caller, who identified himself as an employee of Chance Bail Bonds, told the victim her son was in jail and the bail amount for his release was set at $10,500. The caller further told the victim a courier would respond from Chance Bail Bonds to her home and pick up the money. The caller explained Chance Bail Bonds recently began the courier service as a way to curb the spread of the COVID-19 virus. Chance Bail Bonds asked the victim to provide her address and package the cash in a white envelope for pick-up. If you receive a call like this, contact the person who is supposedly in jail and contact your local police department immediately. Residents are reminded to NEVER provide personal information over the phone and under no circumstances should you go to the bank to withdraw money.
